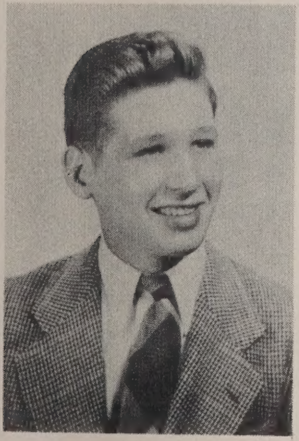
Her ready smile and splendid spirit indicate a successful future for "Dell."



Arthur John Dugas "Art"

With his wit and pleasant personality, "Art" has won many friends. He has been very active in baseball, basketball, and other sports, a fact which has given him the honor of being voted the most Athletic boy in the class. He has been a member of the Glee Club, Pre-Drivers' Club, Automotive Mechanics' Club, and Science Club. "Art" has also served many times as class officer. His dramatic ability is illustrated by the fact that he has taken part in all of our high school plays, including the Senior Play. We know that he will be a success in his chosen profession of salesman because of his interest in people.

Lorraine Aurore Duquette "Lad"

"Lad" has been a member of Voice Class for four years and Glee Club for two years. She has also been a member of the Dramatic Club and has taken part in many plays, including the Senior Play. "Lad" has had a high scholastic record and has received pins for Shorthand and Typing. Her dependability, determination, and willingness to work assure her of success. She plans to become a secretary, and with all her admirable traits, we know she will be a success.

Margaret Barton Farr "Buddy"

"Buddy" is one of the most versatile members of our class. She has been an active member of Voice Class, Orchestra, and Glee Club for the past four years and has served as class officer and secretary of the Student Council. "Buddy" has taken part in all our play contests, including the Senior Play, in which she played the leading role of "Tish." She was also chosen as Representative of the D. A. R. at Boston and received the National Honor Society pin. With her most agreeable personality, "Buddy" will make a fine nurse. She also secured one of the highest honors of our school that of being graduation speaker.

Barbara Flaherty

Barbara, who is very quiet, exceptionally studious, and a perfect lady, has highest honors for four years. She has been a member of Voice Class for four years, Glee Club, two years; Good Writers' Club, two years; and Debating Club, one year. She has already been accepted by Massachusetts State University, where she plans to study pre-medical work. Much success to you, Barbara.

Burton Brant "Bert"

"Bert" has been an active member of the Voice Class and Glee Club for four years and has taken part in many school programs as a soloist. He has been a member of the debating team for two years and participates in class track and class basketball. "Bert", in the Senior Play, played the part of an international jewel thief and has done equally well playing other roles in our annual play contests. He was voted best sport by the members of the class a characteristic which proves that he will be a success in life because of his ability to get along with people.

Joan Hammond "Joanie"

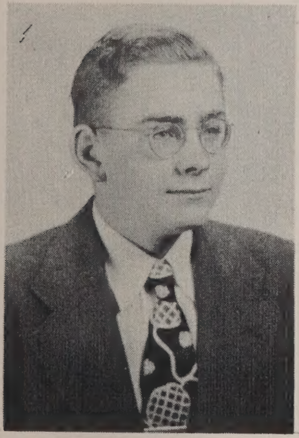
Whenever you see a flaming mass of red hair, you can be sure it's "Joanie", an active member of our class. "Joanie" is a member of the Glee Club and also the Voice Class. She has taken part in the annual play contests and played a role in the Senior Class play. This year "Joanie" was an active member of the Sewing Club. She plans to be a nurse, and we all wish her luck in the years to come.

David Lackstrom "Dave"

"Dave", an honor student all through high school, is the most versatile boy in our class. In sports, "Dave" has been a dependable member of the baseball team and the basketball squad besides his participation in class track. His interest in extra-curricular activities accounts for his being a member of several clubs. In addition, "Dave" has entered two Prize Speaking Contests. His fine record makes him a graduation speaker. His self-confidence and remarkable scholastic ability, particularly in science and mathematics, will make him successful in Worcester Polytechnic Institute to which he has a five hundred dollar scholarship.

Jeannette Lof "Jeanie"

"Jeanie", who is one of the quieter members of our class, occasionally lends a little wit to make life brighter for us. She has been a member of the Glee Club and Voice Class for four years. You can see that "Jeanie" likes variety, for each year she has been in a different club, for example, the Red Cross, Pre-Drivers', Dramatic, and Good Writers'. With her amiable disposition, we are sure that "Jeanie" will succeed in her work as a nurse.



Robert Edward Lafler "Bobby"

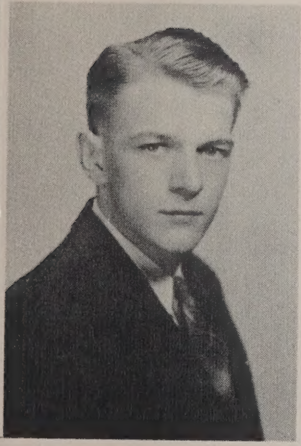
"Bobby" is the most studious boy of the Senior Class, but don't let him fool you. He is as humorous as he is serious. He had a leading part in the Senior Play, where he helped us to keep the audience roaring with laughter. The fact that he had highest honors for the last four years has earned for him the distinction of being selected as a Commencement Speaker. He has taken part in the activities of many clubs, a fact which shows that he takes a good deal of interest in school life. We know that his high achievement in secondary school will bring him success in the field of scientific research.

Dorothy Mann "Dotty"

"Dotty" is a very good sport, always has a smile for everyone, proof of her good nature, a fact which explains her selection as the most agreeable member of the Senior Class. In addition to maintaining the fine marks which have placed her on the honor roll, "Dotty" has been active in many school activities. She has participated in all class plays and in the Senior Play; has been a member of the Glee Club and Voice Class four years, and has served well as treasurer for the Student Council. "Dotty" plans to become a secretary, so our best wishes go with her as she furthers her education.

Ruth Mitchell "Ruthie"

"Ruthie" is one of the quiet members of the Senior class. Her willingness to cooperate and her friendliness make her very well-liked among her classmates. "Ruthie" has been in Glee Club two years, in Voice Class four years, in Red Cross Club one year. In Dramatic Club, "Ruthie" has played various parts capably. She intends to become an office worker. In this line of work, her skill and courtesy will help. After that, "Ruthie" has her heart set upon becoming a housewife. This we can tell by the diamond she wears.



Myron Reynolds

Though he is the most handsome boy in our class, Myron is bashful and reserved. He never engages in worthless chatter, but he does possess a fine sense of humor. His good-natured personality is one of his admirable qualities. Myron says he wants to become a mechanic. Lots of luck, Myron.

Shirley Rice "Shirl"

"Shirl", voted the prettiest girl in the Senior class, is outstanding as one of our peppiest members. She has been a member of the Glee Club and Voice Class for four years. Various clubs to which she has belonged include the Dramatic, Pre-Drivers', and Sewing Clubs. This year "Shirl" is president of the Glee Club and a member of the Student Council. Other activities in which she has taken part are the Senior play and several play contests. With her vivacity, "Shirl" is bound to be a success as a hairdresser.

Eunice A. Snow "Eunie"

"Eunie" was voted the most mischievous member of the class, and well she deserved it, as she always has a ready answer. She has been a member of the Voice Class and Glee Club for four years. She also admirably played a leading role in the Senior play, and participated in class plays. "Eunie" went out for basketball four years, and was captain this last year. She was voted our most athletic girl. With such a happy-go-lucky personality, "Eunie" is sure to be successful.

Richard B. Smith "Smitty"

"Smitty" is one of the most active Senior boys. He has been a member of the Glee Club, Voice Class, and Orchestra for four years. He has been active in prize speaking, class basketball, and baseball, and he has participated in many play contests including the Senior Play. He has been a class officer and Red Cross representative for two years. "Smitty" was president in his Senior year and was voted the most popular boy. Everyone wishes "Smitty" good luck in his chosen field of dramatics.

Phyllis A. Wolfenden "Wolfe"

Although Phyllis is one of the quieter members of the class, she has been a faithful worker on committees and in the commercial department. "Wolfe" has been a member of the Voice Class and Glee Club for four years. She participated in basketball for three years and was manager in her Senior year. "Wolfe" also served as lunch counter assistant and was a member of the Senior Play cast. With her pleasing personality,"Wolfe"is sure to be successful in her chosen field.

Phyllis L. Watson "Phil"

"Phil is one of the most capable members of the class as she has participated in various school activities. She has been a member of the Voice Class and Glee Club for four years."Phil"has participated in many plays, including the Senior Play. Although "Phil" is the youngest member of the class, she has been class officer many times, and president of the Student Council in her Senior year. CLASS HISTORY

In 1942, fifty- three strong, we, the class of 1948, entered the seventh grade of Charlton High School. We were very fortunate in having a wonderful leader, Miss Manzi, to start us on our high school career. The class officers that we chose for the year were as follows: President, Margaret Farr; Vice President, David Lackstrom; Secretary, Barbara Flaherty; and Treasurer, Adele Caplette.

Esther Mahan, David Lackstrom, Margaret Farr, and Barbara Flaherty had the distinciton of receiving highest honors for that year. Those on the honor roll all year were Shirley Rice, Phyllis Watson, Dorothy Mann, and Robert Lafler.

For the first time, we participated in the annual play contest giving "All American Boy," a fine production even though we bowed to upper classmen. The cast was composed of the following: Eugene Fallstitch, Margaret Farr, Betty Sullivan, Arthur Dugas, David Lackstrom, and Shirley Rice.

Ernest Scott was the high salesman for grade seven in the Annual Magazine Contest.

We also participated in the purchasing of stamps and bonds. During the course of the year there were many boys who left. These included: Frank Morang, Eugene Fallstitch, William Leuthner, Donald Hathaway, Paul Roy, Joseph St. George, Edwin Beckwith, Alvin Stevens, and Edna Porter, Joseph Carrington, Gilbert Diamond, Donald Robbins, William Casey, and Joseph Butler.

We entered our second year at Charlton High School with the thirty-five members, and Mrs. Madaus as our worthy adviser. We were happy to welcome two new students, Robert Brooks, and Richard Smith.

Class officers elected were President, Phyllis Watson; Vice- President, Esther Mahan; Secretary, Margaret Farr; and Treasurer, Phyllis Wolfenden.

We produced, "Almost Seventeen," for the annual play contest, and we came out on top with the cup. Members of the cast were Lawrence Nabozney, Phyllis Watson, Margaret Farr, and David Lackstrom.

Again we participated in the magazine contest, and we were proud of Ernest Scott, for he was second highest salesman in the school.

Only one of our members, Margaret Farr, went out for prize speaking. She tied for first place in the humorous division, and went to District Meet at Shrewsbury.

Those on the honor roll were Margaret Farr, Barbara Flaherty, Phyllis Watson, Dorothy Mann, David Lackstrom, and Robert Lafler.

Four of our classmates left during this year, Sylvia Caplette, Lester Morang, Lawrence Nabozney, and Edward Prunier, also Eugene Farrar. Robert Nichols was transferred.

We started our Freshman year with Mr. Maloney as our leader. Our class now consisted of thirty-three members. We were glad to welcome Lorraine Duquette, Ruth Mitchell, Lauria Wright, and Norman Spring into our group. However, during the year, we lost six classmates, Lauria Wright, Euclid Caplette, Albert Ianiccheri, Barbara Shackett, and Doris Zinkowsky.

The class elected Dorothy Mann, President; Esther Mahan, Vice-President; Phyllis Watson, Secretary; and Barbara Flaherty, Treasurer.

Highest honors went to Margaret Farr, Esther Mahan, Phyllis Watson and Robert Lafler, but, Barbara Flaherty and David Lackstrom were also on the honor roll.

We presented, "A New Deal For Mary," at the play contest, and with the help of our coach Mr. Maloney we once again accepted the cup. The characters were Burton Grant, Adele Caplette, Arthur Dugas, Maurice Shea, Richard Smith, Phyllis Watson, and Phyllis Wolfenden.

We also took part in the paper drive, a patriotic activity for our school year. Esther Mahan was the only freshman who participated in the All Star Assembly. Eunice Snow, Phyllis Wolfenden, represented us in Basketball.

Only thirty-one students returned in the fall for our Sophomore Year. We were very sorry to lose, because of illness, a wonderful classmate Esther Mahan. Shirley Keefe, Neal and Norman Morang, and Robert Stevens also left during the Sophomore year.

With a patient coach, and a capable leader, Mrs. Fiske, we put up a hard struggle at the play contest, but we had to bow to the seniors. The "City Slicker and Our Nell," a marvelous show, included Arthur Dugas, Margaret Farr, Eunice Snow, Ernest Scott, Neal Morang, Dorothy Mann, Phyllis Watson, Phyllis Wolfenden, and Richard Smith as the cast members.

Because of our good salesmanship and Mrs. Fiske's guidance, we won the Magazine Contest, and as a reward, Mrs. Fiske took us to see a moving picture in Worcester.

Those who received highest scholastic honors were Barbara Flaherty, Robert Lafler, and Phyllis Watson. Those who were on the honor roll were as follows: Margaret Farr, Barbara Luce, and David Lackstrom.

Margaret Farr, who represented us in the annual Prize Speaking Contest, won a prize in the Humorous Division.

We were well-represented in basketball and baseball, as both our boys and girls participated.

We lost some of our classmates this year; namely, Ernest Scott, Doris Burnell, Elizabeth Sullivan.

We entered our Junior year with twenty-three members, but we were unfortunate to lose Barbara Luce and John Lacerte. With Mrs. Hammond, as our efficient guide, we looked forward to another year.

The first event was the play contest, "The Bracelet of Doom," a mystery which had the following cast: ArthurDugas, Adele Caplette, Margaret Farr, Phyllis Watson, Burton Grant, David Lackstrom, Richard Smith, and Dorothy Mann. We endeavored to win, but we lost to the Sophomores.

The juniors sold candy for the benefit of the class treasury.

The class officers chosen for the year were Arthur Dugas, President; Phyllis Watson, Vice-President; Dorothy Mann, Secretary, and Adele Caplette, Treasurer.

Honor Roll Students were Phyllis Watson, David Lackstrom, Margaret Farr, Barbara Flaherty, Dorothy Mann, and Robert Lafler.

Margaret Farr, Phyllis Watson, David Lackstrom, and Richard Smith participated in the Prize Speaking Contest.

Phyllis Watson was chosen to compete in the American Legion Speaking Contest, held in Webster.

We were very proud of Margaret Farr, who won in our annual contest and later won second in the State Finals of the Humorous Division. Phyllis Watson won second prize in the oratorical division. Richard Smith won second prize in thehumorous division. Margaret and and Phyllis, and the following debators: David Lackstrom, Burton Grant, and Dorothy Mann went to Ashburnham to participate in the State finals.

During the year, Norman Spring joined us.

Barbara Flaherty won the Spelling Bee Contest.

Our most important and exciting event was our Junior Prom, which was held May 9, with Russ Cole's Orchestra furnishing the music. The hall was beautifully decorated with our class colors, which were black rose pink, and gold. The class flower is the white gardenia. Patrons and Patronesses for the Prom were Superintendent and Mrs. Joseph Burgess, Principal and Mrs. L. Mushroe, and Mr. and Mrs. Perley Smith. The Grand March was led by Arthur Dugas and Adele Caplette.

Norman Spring, Arthur Dugas, and David Lackstrom took part in basketball, and Eunice Snow represented the girls basketball.

When we entered the Senior Year, it was hard to believe that we were near the end of our high school days. We knew, of course, that this would be a busy year.

We regretfully lost Maurice Shea, Walter Cleveland, and Norman Spring, so we started the year with nineteen pupils. The class officers were President, Richard Smith; Vice-President, Dorothy Mann; Secretary, Margaret Farr; and Treasurer, Adele Caplette. Phyllis Watson was president of the Student Council, Margaret Farr, Secretary, and Dorothy Mann, Treasurer.

We presented, "Down in the Heart of Texas," in the play contest. Pupils in the cast were Phyllis Watson, Adele Caplette, Margaret Farr, Shirley Rice, Dorothy Mann, Richard Smith, Arthur Dugas, and Burton Grant. We bowed to the Sophomores.

We followed a recent school tradition by sponsoring an annual Senior Auction, which was a huge success. We also sold Christmas cards, and this too proved to be profitable.

The entire Senior Class participated in the annual Senior Play, "Tish" which was a great success, and contributed much to our treasury.

Arthur Dugas and David Lackstrom starred on the basketball team. Dugas, Lackstrom, and Smith played on the baseball team, Phyllis Wolfenden was manager and Eunice Snow was captain of the basketbtll team, with Ruth Mitchell playing also.

During our spring vacation, we went on our Class Trip, which was enjoyed by all, we were fortunate in having Mr. Berube, Miss Putnam, and Miss Berthiaume as chaperones. I am sure, the seniors will agree with me that it was a very educational trip.

Accompanied by Miss Putnam, four seniors attended the New England Music Festival in South Portland, Maine. They were Jeannette Lof, Margaret Farr, Dorothy Mann, and Richard Smith.

We canvassed the town for scrap paper, which was an asset to our class treasury .

Our commencement speakers, we are happy to announce are as follows Margaret Farr, Phyllis Watson, Barbara Flaherty, David Lackstrom and Robert Lafler.

The honor roll was composed of Phyllis Watson, Margaret Farr, Barbara Flaherty, Lorraine Duquette, Dorothy Mann, David Lackstrom and Robert Lafler.

Barbara Flaherty won the Spelling Bee again.

David Lackstrom participated in the Annual Prize Speaking Contest, and he won second prize.

As we, the Class of '48, leave Charlton High School, we think fondly of all the wonderful times we had, and we sincerely hope that the classes to follow will have as happy and profitable journey as we did.

Dorothy Mann, A Senior

CLASS PROPHECY

It was a warm day in June 1963, as I stood in the doorway of my beauty parlor in the M. G. M. Studios in Hollywood. For several years, I had been assigned to the make-up division of the motion picture industry.

Tomorrow I would give Richard Smith his make-up of moustache for his role of "Cuthbert" in his own picture, "The Daggar and the Blonde." After this, he would start another picture from a play he had previously produced on Broadway. Yes, Richard was making a name for himself in lights all over Broadway and now in Hollywood. He was the only eligible bachelor left out here, and was being chased like a burglar.

I stood on the corner, a few minutes later, and hailed a taxi. Finally, as one rushed up, I noticed something familiar about the driver; and as I was getting in, I heard a laugh. Yes, It was the same old laugh I had heard so many years before. It was, believe it or not, Myron Reynolds. We exchanged greetings, and Myron told me he had been in the Taxi business for years, now, and was making enough to support a beautiful wife and home out in the "Swanky" Beverly Hills region.

The next day after work, I took a train out to Cleveland for a visit before I went in to New York. I had heard of Jeannette's Rendezvous," and wanted to visit it. Yes, Jeannette Lof owned the largest, "hot spot in town." I found her, and she invited me in for a meal "on the house."

When I arrived in New York, I went to the super "Hotel Lafler," where I had made reservations for that day. When I walked through the door, I ran into the little Bobby Lafler, who was going out to get into his Cadillac waiting outside. When he saw me, he cordially invited me to stay as long as I wanted for nothing. He really did own the place, and explained he was in a hurry to meet the multimillionaire Arthur Dugas, who was also in business in N.Y. Yes, Arthur was now the publisher for the largest Joke Magazine Company in the world. He started as a small time salesman and finally worked up to position of editor of "A Thousand and one Jokes."

During the afternoon, I decided to tour New York City once more and look up some of my old friends. I went first to N.B.C. to see the famous Phyllis Wolfenden, who was now putting on her own Soap Box Opera, "My Other Happy Husband." Phyllis played the leading role herself and also assisted with small parts of other programs. Phyllis was the same as usual, and after our friendly chat, I decided to leave for a visit to the Hayden Planetarium once more.

Just as I was about to enter, I saw my old classmates, David Lackstrom, the handsome, and Burton Grant, the witty, coming out the door. They were surprised to see me, and after their very cordial greeting, David explained he had majored in two subjects, not one. For his chemistry he was the best in the world, and for his Math. he had won many prizes in various countries. He was in constant competition with Einstein, and with Burton to work with him in his geometry, he achieved great success.

Yes, Burton was quite a Mathematician, too. He had won a trip around the world for a prize for finding the correct way to trisect any angle. After his name was the following: Burton Grant; B.B., which means Bachelor of Brains. That's Grant!

After my visit there, I decided to go shopping for some clothes for the evening. I looked in the telephone directory and, much to my surprise, I found a 5th Avenue Store called Duquette Mitchell & Company. My suspicions aroused, I hurried over there, and I was right. Lorraine owned the Men's department and Ruth the Women's. They were so glad to see me that I was supplied with enough dresses and coats to last ten years, at fifty nine per cent off the price.

They told me that Phyllis Watson was just in from a tour of the country with her all-man orchestra called, "The Two Hers and The Hims." She is doing well in the musical field and has hired Adele Laplette to do the vocal numbers. Adele was the girl with the beautiful figure and sensational voice. The two of them have sung and played in many night clubs throughout N.Y. and the country.

On the way back to my hotel, I stopped to buy a paper, and as I glanced at the headlines, a familiar name struck my eyes. The headlines were "Miss Farr saves twenty lives in plane crash." Yes, Buddy had been made head nurse at John Hopkins' Hospital and had been at the scene of the crash. With her quick fingers and alert mind, she gave first aid and saved almost all the crew and passengers.

In smaller print were the words "Hostess Eunice Snow Escapes Uninjured." Yes, Eunice was hostess on one of the best Airliners in the world. She had circled the globe many times and enjoyed her trips almost as well as the passengers did.

When I returned, I found a telegram waiting for me from Edna Baker. She had heard I was in town and gave me an address to follow, a thing which I immediately did. I looked twice when I got there, as the sign over the door said, "Edna's Lingerie." Golly, what a surprise! She told me she was designing and selling her own creations and liked her work very much. She asked me to join her during the evening so I changed my plans and did so. I knew by the way her eyes were shining that she had something up her sleeve. She led me to a skating rink where beautiful girls were doing some fancy skating. Soon the spotlight turned to the star, and there in the middle, on shining ice skates, was a beautiful redhead doing the most exquisite skating that I had ever seen. After the act, Edna called her over, and we exchanged greetings. She owned the rink herself; and since her husband was a skater, they went into the business. Yes, this was Joan Hammond.

It was late when I returned from Edna's, and found a forwarded letter from home urging me to come to Charlton. When I stepped from my bus at Charlton Center, I found the place completely renovated. In the middle of what was once a large field, stood a beautiful brick building with a sign at the entrance, "Flaherty's home for Children". Yes, when I found Barbara Flaherty, she told me that she ran the Orphans Home and was very happy in her work. She also told me that without Dorothy Mann, she would be unable to carry on , or even to have built the place. You see, Dotty started as a secretary to a banker and rose to President of the largest bank in Boston. As money was nothing to Dorothy, she personally lent the money to Barbara for her Children's Home. Now the word Charlton is a name of great significance, all because two girls accomplished their dream in life.

After this, I went to my home for a visit with a peaceful mind and joyous heart, for after fifteen years, I had been reunited with all my friends from the class of 1948.

Respectfully submitted,
Shirley Rice.

CLASS SONG

Tune: Now Is The Hour
Words by Eunice Snow

Now is the Time
When we must say adieu
To all our teachers,
Classmates, and you.

But through the years,
As all our dreams come true,
We will remember
All our joys with you.

Now is the Time
When we must say goodbye.
We now are leaving
Dear old Charlton High.

MAN AND THE AUTOMOBILE

One of the most important problems of the United States today is, I think, the problem of dealing with the numerous accidents upon the highways of America.

This problem comes from the rapid production of automobiles, and the increasing number of people learning to operate them. As a result, heavy traffic covers the highways, and numerous accidents occur, and human lives are destroyed, mainly because of carelessness. No one stops to realize this situation unless the accident occurs in his own family.

Everyone knows what terrible deaths the war brought about, but it isn't so awful when one stops to realize that automobiles took more lives than the last war. During eighteen months of the World War, fifty thousand five hundred persons were killed in motor mishaps.

Since the time of the first automobile, accidents have increased from one hundred eighty three to thirty two thousand four hundred. A solution to this problem must not only deal with the operation of the machine but it must also improve the quality and attitude of the driver. A man is not allowed to engineer a locomotive or fly a plane unless he has had some training in these operations, but how about our automobiles drivers' training. In some states, if a child can steer a scooter, he can drive an automobile. In no state has any law been passed compelling people to be taught how to drive.

If we are to begin seriously to attack our traffic problem, this condition cannot be allowed to exist. Somewhere in our educational system a place must be found where responsibility must be established for teaching young people to use the automobile.

The most adaptable and natural place is the high school. Schools, Charlton included, have already started these courses for students. Students are allowed to take this course during club periods. In this course, all the fundamentals dealing with automobiles are shown. This provides an excellent training for those interested in learning to operate a motor vehicle. It also aids the student to obtain a license.

In the future this course may be required in all schools throughout the United States.

The Problem of Palestine

Today, as we are recovering from the greatest war in history, people in Palestine are fighting another war among themselves. Jews and Arabs, both striving to gain control of the Holy land, are impatiently awaiting the deadline of May fifteenth. On that date, the British are scheduled to leave Palestine; and unless conditions improve, they will leave it in a warlike state.

Whether this state of war will grow worse or not depends, greatly upon the United Nations and the help that we give her. We have already seen that our suggestion for partition of Palestine has been a failure, but we must not let this discourage us, for the problem can and must be solved.

It is true that United States' troops cannot police the Holy Land alone, but they can make up a part of the troops that do. Until now, the United States has had no World Police Force. The time has come when one must be formed.

By urging the speedy organization of this armed force and by supporting the United Nations in other ways, we can more easily solve this problem, which at the present time is threatening our hopes of World peace.

Don't Bomb Russia Now

Whenever you hear someone say, "Bomb Russia now and end this so called 'cold war'," stop to think a little about it. Think of the dangers that would have to be faced, and think of the possibility of the success of such a mission.

The bombers that we have at the present time; namely, B-29's have the range to reach Russia and return, but only by the shortest route, which is over the Polar Ice Cap. The Russian detection system and their concentration of Jet Planes would be able to meet these bombers and shoot them down before they got a hundred miles over the Russian border.

To make a raid such as this successful we would have to have bombers that fly at a speed of five-hundred to six-hundred miles per hour, and to have a range of at least twice that of the B-29, for we would have to attack the bases in Russia from many different routes to insure the success of the mission. These planes would have to fly at an altitude of four or five miles and at that altitude and at their speed, even the highly valuable Norden bombsight would be obsolete.

It will take at least five years under constant appropriations from Congress to reach this objective and to produce planes capable of carrying out this mission. These planes will be larger than our greatest imagination could picture to carry enough fuel and bombs.

Next time someone tells you that we should bomb Russia now, ask him if he cares to go along for the ride.

One fact however, is encouraging; namely, that Russia will have the same trouble bombing us and it will take her longer to develop her planes than it will take us to develop ours. We must work for World Peace and do nothing radical that we would regret later. Bombing Russia is surely not the answer to World Peace.

Something New Has Been Added

"Really?" "I can't believe it!" "At Last!" comes from all sides.

These are only a few of the numerous exclamations that have been uttered concerning the two new wings to be added to our high school.

No doubt the majority of pupils in Charlton are relieved or, at least, pleased to find that soon they will be attending a larger school. I'm sure that the faculty and principal are relieved because of the increased enrollment that is expected for next year.

Conditions in Charlton High School are becoming very critical and our grammar schools are overcrowded with some rather obsolete district schools.

The plan for the high school with the new addition, as it now exists is to build two wings added to the back of the present building, with space in the middle for future use as a gymnasium. In the two wings there will be room for the intermediate grades fourth, fifth and sixth and for high school much needed courses in agriculure, general shop work, and domestic science classes.

Several of the students now in high school don't really care about a new addition in the high school, for they feel they won't be here to enjoy it. Most of the pupils, however, are pleased to think that even if they aren't here long enough, their brothers and sisters, and relatives will have an opportunity to study practical courses as well as college and commercial work.

My D. A. R. Trip

On the brisk morning of March nineteenth, I wondered why I had been awakened earlier than usual. Then, I became excited as I realized, that it was the day of the D. A. R. convention in Boston.

At Howard Johnson's Restaurant I met the girls from Oxford, Southbridge and Webster, where with our chaperones, we drove to the conference at the Somerset Hotel, Boston.

After registration, we all went to the Grand Assembly Hall, where various reports and ceremonies were held. Then, the breath-taking moment of choosing the delegate to Washington finally came. One girl from over two hundred delegates was to be chosen to represent the state of Massachusetts at the National Conference. We were quite thrilled because the lucky girl was seated right behind us.

Then, we marched around the Assembly Hall to the side door where chartered busses waited to take us to the Boston City Club for lunch.

After lunch we went on a tour of the State House, a trip which proved to be very interesting.

In the House of Representatives, the girls from Oxford and Charlton were paged. Representative Allen then came to see us and presented each girl with an autographed copy of the very important volume, which gave the rules and regulations for the General Court. This was quite a thrilling experience for us, as no other representative did this.

After we completed our tour of the State House, we returned to the hotel and started for home.

One of the ladies from Oxford decided to visit her sister at the Harvard Medical Library, and she showed us many of the famous and interesting rooms.

The thrill of meeting so many other Good Citizens, helped to make the D. A. R. Trip one of the most interesting and enjoyable activities of my Senior year.

"Nothing but Graduation"

Cathy Bannish was a senior at Hastings High. For two months, she had been realizing something which, four years before, had seemed an impossibility. Cathy's parents were Lithuanian-born. There were eight children in the Bannish family; and as far back as Cathy could remember, shehad always lived in the poorest section of the city and, consequently, had always known poverty. Being the oldest of the children, Cathy had regarded the eleventh year as the termination of her education. She was to be sixteen that year; and she expected, beyond a doubt, that her parents would take her out of a school, for it was necessary that she work as soon as possible. But when Cathy thought that she had just one month left at school, her father calmly informed her that as long as she had only a year and a half before graduation, she might as well finish high school. "The family had managed until then", he said, " and they could for another year and a half."

Thus, Mr. bannish had decided - partly because he knew how much it would mean to Cathy and partly because all through high school she had shown definite scholastic ability, particularly in science.

Cathy, needless to say, did not fool away her time. She worked harder than ever at her school work and at her job, which she had taken on her own initiative to help her family out. Toward the end of her high school course, Cathy pondered over her worst dilemma - whether she could, after working a few years, go on to college or whether it would be better if she forgot her own ambitions and helped send her brothers and sisters to school. The first alternative seemed selfish to her; the second, she thought, would give her more satisfaction and happiness, for she was primarily of an altruistic mind. Facing reality, she prepared herself for work while the hope of ever seeing the inside of a college grew fainter as the days went by.

Whatever the future held, Cathy decided to make the most of her Senior year. She was doing just that when she arrived home one bright October afternoon happier than usual because she had made the finals in scholarship competition. Her hopes were exceedingly high, but her happiness was blighted by the sudden illness of Susie, her youngest sister. Suffering from spinal meningitis, Susie soon found herself in the City Hospital in a cast up to her neck. Doctors could not save her from paralysis. They could not say, with certainty, how long she would be under treatment. For years to come, Cathy remembered the physical agony of her little sister more vividly than she remembered any of hers. So, fate had settled Cathy's dilemma for her. There would be no college. There wouldn't even be any more high school for her. Hospital bills had to be paid, Susie had to get the best care available, and Cathy had to go to work. But Cathy refused to be discouraged. She resigned herself to what had occurred and made herself happy in her work, educating herself as best she could in much the same way as self-made men have done.

she longed to be going with them, perhaps because she knew that she thought that she probably would never be able to see these places. The second time was in June at graduation exercises. Outwardly Cathy looked happy, friendly; inwardly, she was visualizing herself sitting up there with her classmates and then addressing the audience as one of the graduation speakers. Walking home that evening feeling very sad, Cathy was thinking how wonderful it would have been to graduate and be in college. Suddenly she felt someone's hand placed upon her arm.

Surprised, she jumped. Cathy awoke from a sound sleep to see the warm June sunshine streaming through her bedroom window, and her Mother bending over her, saying in a Lithuanian accent, "Cathy! Cathy! Wake Up! You've got to go to school today. Only two days left, for tomorrow is graduation."

"Oh, mother, I had the most awful dream. Graduation so close-tomorrow night even- and here I was dreaming that I couldn't graduate. Even in my sleep I think of nothing but graduation," laughed Cathy. Then, in a relieved tone, she said, "Thank heavens, it was only a dream."

MEMORIES

As we entered the seventh grade,
The school was new to us.
Did our homework; passed our tests;
And in teachers put our trust.

We then went into the eighth,
Feeling pretty high,
And continued up the ladder
To pass or else to die.

Then the ninth grade came in view, and
The work got harder then;
But we continued through
Until that year came to an end.

The class still hung together;
We finished through the tenth
And braved all sorts of weather
Until that year came to an end.

Now we were in the Junior year when
New problems arose;
But we solved them all with never a tear;
It was our courage, I suppose.

The twelfth, It just couldn't seem to be
That we were walking up the stairs
And were graduating-
We had made it very fair.

New England Music Festival

I consider it a great pleasure to relate to you the highlights of the New England Music Festival, which was held in South Portland,Maine.

On Wednesday, April 7, at nine o'clock Margaret Farr, Jeannette Lof, Richard Smith, and I, with Miss Putnam, as our instructor, left Charlton High School.

After we stopped to have the car prepared for the trip, we went to Mrs. Carlson's in Auburn and had our pictures taken for the paper. As we continued our trip, we came in sight of Longfellow's Wayside Inn, and as none of us had ever had the opportunity of visiting the inn, and because of the fact that students were admitted free, we thought it unwise to miss this chance. The inn, as you may know, is interesting for many historical relics, and literary reasons. After we left the Wayside Inn we started looking for a place to eat.

As we drove along, we were either sleeping or interested in the scenery, so Miss Putnam took a wrong turn which took us a few miles out of our way. We had the advantage of traveling over the new super highway, which runs from Portsmouth to Portland.

We arrived in South Portland at four-thirty. While Miss Putnam was registering us at the high school, Margaret decided to take pictures with Miss Putnam's camera, but after she took the pictures, she forgot to turn it, so the pictures came out on top of each other. After we were registered, we went to the North Congregational Church to eat. There, a very nice lady offered to take us to our homes, for she knew the roads better than we. Richard was more fortunate than we were because he stayed in an adjacent home. Jeannette and Margaret were about two miles from town, but in a very nice place. I was at the foot of the hill, and was also fortunate in being with a nice agreeable family. We three girls were near the ocean, and we really dreaded leaving it. As one of the girls said, "It is really a stern and rockbound coast." After we had met our host and hostesses, we went back to town.

Our introductory choral rehearsal was at the First Methodist Church. We worked very diligently until nine o'clock, We were invited to the Welcome Dance, but because of our long trip most of us thought we would be able to sing better the next day if we went to our homes. Richard, however, could not stay away from the dance.

Thursday morning, we rose about eight o'clock, ate breakfast with our host and hostess, received a ride into town, and then went to rehearsal at nine o'clock. Jeannette was very unfortunate as she came down with a cold, so she had to spend her time in bed, but she recuperated in time for the concert. After rehearsal, we ate dinner, and went back to another rehearsal. After this rehearsal, which was a sectional one, Margaret and I went on a tour which was scheduled for us. First, we went through Fort Williams, and I think that what interested us most was the jailhouse. We saw the remains of the ship, The U.S.S. Oke Alexander, which crashed off the coast of Maine last year. We then reached our destination, which was Twin Lights. Thursday night we had our rehearsal from seven to nine o'clock and this was the last time we were permitted to use our music. The schedule for Friday was similar to that of Thursday, except for the fact that we gave the grade children a concert.

To us, Saturday was almost like V.-E. or V.-J. Day. We gave the concert in the South Portland High School auditorium. In the morning, we had our last rehearsal. Our afternoon concert was broadcasted over station WGAN Portland, Maine. After the concert, Miss Putnam took us through Portland, so that we might see some of the fashions displayed in the store windows. We then decided to go to Miss Putnam's room in the Columbia Hotel, and take our time to get ready for the concert. After the concert was over, we three girls went home, but Richard stayed to the Farewell Dance.

Sunday morning we left for home, after duly thanking our host and hostess. On our way home, we took the route that followed the shoreline, so we had the opportunity to visit, Wells Beach, Rye Beach, Old Orchard Beach, and others. We arrived in Charlton about eight - thirty.

I think the music festival leaves the same impression on everyone, which is, that more students should have the opportunity to be a part of the annual concerts, for I am sure it would give them a thrill.

SPRING

Walking through the woods one day
I stood and gazed in awe,
For nature's children were at play,
But that's not all I saw.

The trees were green
And shone like queens.
Wild flowers bloomed around,
And lakes of blue, with golden hue,
Reflected on the ground.

The sky above was beautiful;
The clouds went floating by;
The birds and bees were humming
Their songs, while flying high.

Spring was once again at work;
It was scattered everywhere
Over every little thing
Their fragrance filled the air.

CLASS TRIP MEMORIES

On the night of April sixteenth, the Senior Class of Charlton High School arrived at Charlton City to start the trip to New York. After waiting for about two hours, we finally saw that our bus had arrived. Everyone boarded it, and after getting settled, each started talking about what he was going to do in New York. The other passengers on the bus got rather bored and started telling us to keep quiet,as they had to go to work tomorrow. This was time when Lorraine felt like talking so she said, "We also have to go to work tomorrow." The passengers then said, "We hope you fall asleep on your job." Lorraine then kept quiet and fell asleep. As the night wore on and a few gray traces of dawn appeared, the bus landed in New York. A group of heavy-eyed and tired seniors fell to the ground, but this was just the beginning of our trip.

After a hurried toilet at the bus station, we made our way to the hotel at which we were to stay. As our rooms were not ready, we proceeded down to the Automat for breakfast. We found the Automat quite different from ordinary restaurants of Worcester. After we placed coins in slots, a glass tray would open, and then our dish would be ready to take out. One of our group, Barbara Flaherty, dropped her coin in the slot, and started to pick up the cover. But it wouldn't budge. So then her temper got the better of her, and she pulled and yanked at the door. It still wouldn't open, so she walked away. We then left to find post cards. After getting the post cards, we returned to our hotel. One room was ready and we readily gave it to Margaret Farr, who wasn't feeling well. After seeing that she was safely tucked in bed, we left for Grand Central Station. The sights at Grand Central were beautiful, especially the constellations against a blue background. We started back to the hotel and on the way stopped for a soda. After this refreshment we continued on, and on the way, we saw one of the big department stores of New York. After we returned to the hotel, the group then left for one of the planned tours; namely, the Statue of Liberty. On the boat Adele started to fell rather ill. Her face turned pale and legs were beginning to shake. She finally sat down. I guess the tour was too much for her. Arriving at the statue, a few of the students ventured to go up to the top. Dottie was in front of me.As we were near the top a few grunts and groans escaped from Dottie, but finally after a few pulls and pushes she made it. On the way down my legs decided to leave me, and I began to fall. But fortunately Edna grabbed me and held on. After that narrow escape, Edna and I sat on the stairs and laughed.

Leaving the statue, we got a wonderful view of the island, and as we started to think just what this statue represented, a great feeling of security and freedom enveloped us. Boarding our special bus, we found Shirley Rice rolling around on the seat. She was very sick. On our way home, we went through Chinatown and the Bowery. We finally reached our rooms. At this point Shirley left us and went to her room. After we saw that our two patients were put to bed we left for Times Square. There we saw the animated signs, which were very original. We then returned to the hotel and went to Slumberland. At least I thought so, until I heard someone shouting, "Open the door, I'm locked out." It was Joan Hammond, who, after going down stairs and hunting around for an aspirin, had returned to find her door locked, and Barbara, her roommate, was fast asleep. We couldn't wake her up, so we finally reached Dugas. Dugas came up and got the key from the night attendant. Barbara was still asleep. We then settled down for some rest.

On the morning of April 19, we all woke bright and early ready to continue our visit of New York. This was Sunday, and we separated into two groups. One went to St. Patrick's Cathedral and the other to Riverside Drive Church. At Riverside Drive we had a chance to see Grant's tomb. The churches were very large and beautiful. The two groups met at the hotel, and we were given the afternoon off. Some of the students went to Staten Island, and were quite elated over the fact that their journey cost them ohly ten cents. The others went to get some more rest.

That night we continued our tour and visited Chinatown. In Chinatown we went into a regular Opium Den, which led down to a cellar. After visiting a Chinese theater, we went through the Bowery. Smitty was waylaid by one of the fellows who wanted money. But Smitty would not lend him any because it wasn't for a worthy cause. All the time we were there Phyllis Watson kept very close to Mr. Berube. She seemed afraid. After awhile, she finally got up more courage so she and Phyllis Wolfenden were trying to coax a stray cat to follow them back to the hotel. But they didn't have any luck. After our experiences down there, we returned to the hotel and from there we went to Rockerfeller Center. The height on top was terrific, and all our hearts were thumping. The lights shone from all over the city. We went back to the hotel and went to bed for another night of rest.

Monday morning we left for the Fred Waring Broadcast. After the show we went to the Hayden Planetarium. There we saw the history of man and animals. Also planets and meteorites. Jeannette wanted to take a meteorite, but we told her we didn't think she could carry it home. She finally agreed with us and got herself a chain with the Hayden Planetarium on it. We returned to the hotel. By then Margaret wanted to see some jokes, so Margaret, Ruth, and Robert went to the fun shop. There they practically killed one another. The manager of the shop showed Margaret one of his tricks. Running out of the shop to escape, she hit Ruth, and they both landed on the floor. There they lay all in one heap. At night we all went to see the play "Annie get your Gun." It was a hilarous production, so we laughed all through it.

On Tuesday morning we went to RKO and saw the show, "I Remember Mama." Also the Rockettes. After the show Myron showed us his new watch. He bartered with the sales man until he got him down to fifty cents. But then Myron felt rather small so he finally ended by giving the real price. We returned to the hotel and checked our bags to be ready to go at eleven thiry. We all then went out to eat. Each group went to a place downtown. Robert ordered spaghetti. He had the worst trouble trying to keep the pieces from strangling and dripping down on him. Margaret and I were in stitches all the time. After eating, we had the rest of the afternoon on our own.

A group of us went with Miss Putnam to the opera. It was all in Italian, with very inspiring music. We enjoyed it very much. After the opera, we all met at the Greyhound Lines to start home. On the way home we were very quiet. When we reached Charlton City, we all dropped off again, and waited for our transportation home. It was a wonderful class trip, and we had good chaperones to show us the historical places in New York. New York is a very large city and more than once we almost got lost. We all were very glad to get home. Returning to school the next Monday, we learned that about everyone in the class had slept the next day.

STATE STUDENT COUNCIL

On Saturday, April 30, Shirley Denault and I went to a state meeting of the Associated Body of Student Councils, which was held in New Bedford, Massachusetts.

Although many important things were accomplished, I think that the most outstanding part of the program was the discussion group, at which several different schools exchanged their outstanding accomplishments of the year. Delegates and representatives from schools of approximately the same size were grouped in separate rooms.

Some of the ideas advanced in the discussion group that I attended were as follows: suggestion boxes in the principal's office, methods of raising school spirit, a point system similar to the one we use in our own school, a drive to send Care boxes to Europe, and a smoking period for veterans at a Trade School, while the regular students would be allowed to enjoy a candy or a "Coke" machine.

One outstanding suggestion was chosen from each group and the two best suggestions of the day were selected at the business meeting. The two ideas chosen were, a scholarship of $200 provided by the Student Council of Bartlett High School, and a school library started in a novel way by the Shrewsbury High School Student Council.

The benefits gained from State Student Council Meetings are numerous, and I feel that all schools should be able to send representative.

Massachusetts Speech Tournament

As one of the six students who traveled to Cushing Academy with our coach, Mrs. Fiske, to participate in the annual speech meet, I was thrilled to be a part of such a group.

In competition with nine Massachusetts high schools that had the previous experience this season of participating in the Portland, Maine Contest, our group did creditable work. We ranked fourth and fifth, in a group of nine, a fact which made us very proud considering that this was our first attempt at tournament work this season.

In the dramatic division, we were represented by Sally Mann, and Dorothy Robidoux; in the humorous division, Gary Mix and Edith Pontbriand; while in the oratorical division, Phyllis Gendron and David Lackstrom.

Mr. Quimby, principal of Cushing Academy, impressed me very favorably by his many courtesies to us. He was a gracious host at the dinner party, and invited us to visit the new dormitories and to attend the evening May Dance. We enjoyed both experiences.

We met many different pupils from other Massachusetts High Schools, so I felt that we all had a profitable and enjoyable day.

FRIENDS

Did you ever have a true friend,
A friend, who was a real friend,
A friend, who trusted and loved
When your friendship hovered above?

A friend, who when you needed help,
Came right through to the end,
With no bickerings and yells
About the things he had to lend.

To those who throw away old friends,
And try to gain new friends,
Think twice before you leave
Your old friend, your true friend,
And in each phase of life, try to weave
A friendship true and strong
That will hold together like a bond.

SEVENTH GRADE YEARLY REPORT

A capacity crowd entered Charlton High School in September. To the total enrollment, grade seven added fifty-five new names, which were soon to be heard in the corridors. Of course, since that time some have gone and others have come. During the year, we welcomed such new members as James Coyne, Richard and Mary Foley, Carol Ayotte, Alberta Cetrano , and Virginia Pickard. Those who left us were Donald Touchette, Margaret Levia, Leonard Shepard, Helen Dunphe, and Bernard Houghton.

The name and fame of grade seven was to be extended when our activities started.

First came the election of officers which included Stanley Mann, President; Rhea Dugas, Vice- President ; Carol Gard, Secretary; and Sylvia Lackstrom, Treasurer.

Second came our annual play with such prominent actors and actresses as Gladys Garrepy, Joan Roberts , Eleanor Barns, Leland Baker, and William Reil, who performed in an admirable way.

Next came the Prize Speaking-contest in which Joan Roberts and Leland Baker competed. Joan presented "June Night," while Leland's was called the "Saturday's Child." Joan won second prize in the humorous division.

The roster of basketball players was highlighted by such names as Michael Smith and Armand Ianniccheri , while on the girl's list were Eleanor Barnes, Carol Gard, and Olive Thompson.

Outstanding in the history of any school is its "Honor Roll." Grade seven proudly boasts of its honors; namely, Leland Baker, Joan Roberts, Sylvia Lackstrom , Marjorie Robbins, Grace Phillips, Patricia Knowlton, Stanley Mann, and Rhea Dugas. The seventh grade bows to these!

Then, came the Glee Club Concert. Prominent in this oranization were Grace Phillips, Doris Mongeon, Anna Nedzweckas, Elaine Burns, Rhea Dugas, Carol Gard, Sylvia Lackstrom, Joan Roberts, Patricia Knowlton, Gladys Garrepy, Eleanor Barnes, Shirley LeBlanc, Marjorie Robbins, Olive Thompson, Albert McKinstry, Armand Ianniccheri, Russell Hathaway, Michael Smith, James Fitzgerald, Stanley Mann, William Reil, Robert Langlois, Joseph Zinkowsky, Victor Menard, and Robert Russell.

Perfect attendance is really something to be proud of. Therefore, to the credit of our home room in excellent attendance are Alice Austin, Stanley Mann, and Joan Roberts.

Even though we have been at C. H. S. only one year, we hope that we have added to the name and fame of our school. Our motto will be: "Let's help our school to help us."

Respectfully submitted,
Carol Gard, Secretary

GRADE EIGHT NOTES

In September, we of the eighth grade started with forty-four pupils, but we lost four during the year. The pupils that left were Mary Jane Cody, John Butler, Joan Flannery, and Ann Roberts. Henry Dam and Maurice Clark then joined us to bring our number up to forty-two.

We took part in the Junior Play Contest with the one-act comedy, "Georgy Porgie." The cast included, Francis Burns, Jean McKissick, Eldon Turner, Muriel Davis, Gloria Duquette, Joan Mushroe, and Robert Gale. We were successful in winning the cup.

The officers of our class are President, Eldon Turner; Vice-President, Gilbert Mann; Treasurer, Francis Burns; and Secretary, Robert Gale.

Those on the Honor Roll are as follows: Muriel Davis, Joan Mushroe, and Jean McKissick.

Respectfully submitted,
Robert Gale, Secretary

Ninth Grade Report

We started our first year in Charlton High School with thirty-five pupils, twenty-one boys and fourteen girls. Later, we were sorry to lose two pupils, Alexander Porter and William Stevens.

The class officers for this year were as follows: President, Wayne Farr; Vice-President, Herbert McIntire; Secretary, Beatrice Mann; and Treasurer, Walter Lokjo.

Our play for the Play Contest was "Junior's Mustache," in which the following characters took part: Philip Stevens, Martin Peterson, Herbert McIntire, Joyce Morang, Joan Bassett, Annette Mongeon, and Beatrice Mann.

The Honor Roll students for this year were Paul Granger and Barbara Stevens.

We were fortunate to have Paul Granger in the three-act Dramatic Club Play, "Spring Green."

This year we went to Worcester to see the "Freedom Train." Although we had to wait awhile before we got in to see it, we had a great deal of fun. We also met pupils from other schools, and we found those pupils interesting.

The boys that were on the basketball team in our class were Raymond Lavoie and Wayne Farr, who was manager.

We came in third in the Magazine Contest.

Respectfully submitted,
Beatrice Mann, Secretary

Sophomore Flashes

Although we started our second year in Charlton High School with thirty-six pupils, our class has diminished to thirty-three. The three who left were Barbara Jones, Edward Stearns, and George Cody.

Our class officers were elected as follows: President, Kenneth Anderson; Vice-President, Ronald Forkey; Treasurer, Alice Racine; and Secretary, Mary Sampson.

For the Annual Play Contest we presented "One Who Came to Gettysburg." With the help of our coach, Mrs. Fiske, and the members of the play cast, we are proud to say that we won the cup. The cast was composed of the following: Edward Stearns, Peter Lackstrom, Roger Deveau, Herbert Brown, Edith Pontbriand, and Dorothy Robidoux.

We are glad to say that we came in a close second in the Magazine Contest, but we bowed to the Juniors, who won.

During the month of May, Mrs. Fiske took us to see the picture, "I Remember Mama", as a reward for the hard work we did during the Magazine Contest.

We were well represented by the boys in basketball this season with Bobby Dugas, Ronnie Forkey, and Kenneth Anderson as first team substitutes, and Stanley Fitts, Stanley Bond, Pete Lackstrom, and Edward Shea as members of the second team.

The Honor Roll students for last term were Edith Pontbriand, Ronald Forkey, Phyllis Gendron, Alice Racine, and Beryl Foskett.

Respectfully submitted,
Mary Sampson, Secretary

Class of "49"

We started our school year with the total enrollment of twenty-five pupils. A short time later we were sorry to lose two good students; namely, Jeannette Racine and Elizabeth Nichols, but we gladly welcomed a new student, Eleanor O'Connell, to our class.

The class officers chosen for this year were as follows: President, Gary Mix; Vice-President, Dorothy Cook; Secretary, Diana Zinkowsky; and Treasurer, Robert Pierangeli.

We produced the play "Extra" for the Annual Play Contest, but we lost to the sophomores. The cast, coached by Mrs. Emma Hammond, included Dorothy Cook, Evelyn Murkland, George Woods, Sally Mann, Gary Mix, Sylvia Duquette, Herbert Stevens, and Robert Pierangeli.

Since we lost the Play Contest, we tried hard, and we won the Magazine Contest. And as a reward, those who sold three subscriptions each were given, by Mr. Cheney, all the ice cream they could eat.

In order to raise money for the treasury the juniors sold candy bars and taffy.

We had two representatives from our class in the Prize Speaking Contest, and we are very proud of Gary Mix, who won first prize in the humorous division, and Sally Mann, who won second prize in the dramatic division. Both pupils represented us at the Mass. State Tournament in Ashburnham, on May 1, 1948.

In order to teach boys and girls to dance, we juniors started an afterschool dancing class. We are happy to report successful results.

Our Annual Junior Prom, which was held on May 7, featured Russ Cole's Orhcestra, containing eight musicians and a soloist. The town hall was beautifully decorated with our class colors, which were pink, green, and silver. With our theme being Maytime, we decided to have a large May Pole design. The class flowers were pink roses. The Patrons and Patronesses for the Prom were Superintendent and Mrs. Joseph Burgess, Principal and Mrs. H. L. Mushroe, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mann.

The Honor Roll students at the close of the third ranking period were Herbert Stevens, Diana Zinkowsky, and George Woods.

The Juniors also acted as ushers at the Senior Reception.

Respectfully submitted,
Diana Zinkowsky, Secretary

SENIOR FINALS

The Seniors started the year with nineteen pupils and happily ended with nineteen.

The officers for the year were as follows: President, Richard Smith; Vice-President, Dorothy Mann; Treasurer, Adele Caplette; and Secretary, Margaret Farr.

For the Play Contest, the Seniors presented "Deep in the Heart of Texas", but they lost to the Sophomores. The following members participated; Arthur Dugas, Richard Smith, Adele Caplette, Margaret Farr, Phyllis Watson, Dorothy Mann, Burton Grant, and Shirley Rice.

We had several money making activities, which were quite successful. In October and April, we had paper campaigns and our Annual Senior Play; in November, an auction; and in December, we sold Christmas cards.

Perhaps one of our must successful activities was the three-act comedy "Tish", in which the following took part; Dorothy Mann, Eunice Snow, Adele Caplette, Margaret Farr, Phyllis Watson, Phyllis Wolfenden, Joan Hammond, Lorraine Duquette, Barbara Flaherty, Jeannette Lof, Shirley Rice, Edna Baker, Ruth Mitchell, Arthur Dugas, Richard Smith, Robert Lafler, Burton Grant, and David. Lackstrom. A large measure of the success was due to Mrs. Fiske's patience in the coaching of this production.

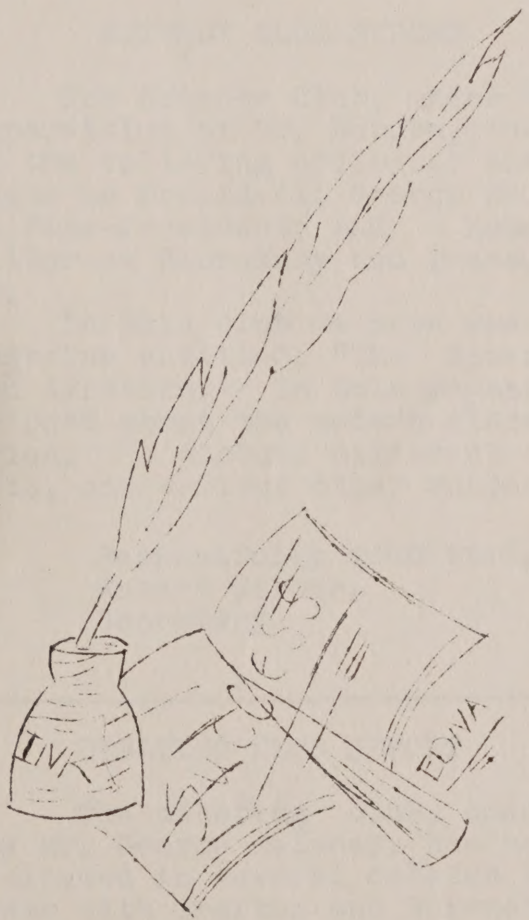
Margaret Farr was chosen to represent the class at the annual D. A. R. conference in Boston on March 19, 1948.

Dorothy Mann, Jeannette Lof, Richard Smith, and Margaret Farr, accompanied by Miss Putnam attended the New England Music Festival in Portland, Maine, from April 7 to 10.

The class went on the New York trip from April 16 to 20, with Miss Putnam, Miss Berthiaume, and Mr. Berube as chaperons.

In closing this final leaf of history at Charlton High School, the Seniors wish to thank all those who have made their journey so enjoyable and profitable.

Respectfully submitted,
Margaret Farr, Secretary.



STUDENT COUNCIL REPORT

From the eighteen members of the Student Council this year the following officers were elected: President, Phyllis Watson; Vice-President, Richard Smith; Secretary, Margaret Farr; and Treasurer Dorothy Mann.

The annual play contests were held with October 30 for the Junior Contest and November 6 for the Senior Contest.

The Council again sponsored the Curtis Magazine plan, which proved to be very successful as the school went over its quota of $1200 with a total of $1363.75.

The two assemblies which were sponsored by the council were Miss Drew, who was the handwriting analyst and Ralph Curry, who discussed manners.

Student Council pins were purchased for all members of the Council who had not had one previously.

Student Council tickets were again sold for $2.00 this year.

The Spelling Bee was held on April 8, and the All Star Assembly on May 19.

Wayne Farr was elected baseball manager, with Stanley Bond and Arthur Reil as his assistants.

Respectfully submitted,
Margaret Farr,
Secretary

PRE-DRIVERS' CLUB

This year the Pre-Drivers' Club was composed of three students: Eunice Mahan, Eunice Snow, and Owen Keenan. We have completed the book Man and the Motor Car, and are now ready to take our final test. If we pass this test, we will receive a certificate that will help us when we apply for automobile license.

The Pre-Drivers' Club teaches us not only the questions on road driving, but also the proper operations of the motor vehicle, and the right attitudes that each driver needs in operating a motor car.

Many schools do not offer this opportunity to students. Any student intending to operate a motor vehicle should if possible take this course in school.

Respectfully submitted,
Eunice Snow,
Secretary

SCIENCE CLUB REPORT

The Science Club, under the supervision of Mr. Berube, elected the following officers: Arthur Dugas as President; George Woods as Vice-President; and Robert Wilbur as Secretary and Treasurer.

In this club we have weekly magazine entitled, "The Science and Aviation." In this magazine we read about the modern discoveries. We discuss different sports, and various other subjects.

Respectfully submitted,
Robert Wilbur,
Secretary

DEBATING CLUB REPORT

The debating club, coached by Mr. George Maloney, has participated in several debates this year with Grafton and Shrewsbury, but we regret that it was unable to participate in the Ashburnham State meeting this season.

We now have six members with Eleanor O'Connell who joined the club in the middle part of the year.

Respectfully submitted,
Phyllis Gendron, Sec.

DRAMATIC CLUB REPORT

The Dramatic Club, which is directed by Mrs. Fiske, is the largest Club in our school, with a membership of thirty-three.

Each member in our club has a chance to participate in at least one public performance during the year under the direction of our excellent coach, Mrs.Fiske, who has given us her extra time for rehearsals.

Respectfully submitted,
Adele Caplette,
Secretary

GOOD WRITERS' CLUB REPORT

The officers of the Good Writers' Club this year were as follows: Shirley Denault, President; Irene Boulanger, Treasurer; and Phyllis Wolfenden, Secretary. Mrs. Hammond was our adviser.

All of the members of the Good Writers' Club of Charlton High School have received a certificate for good writing. They are as follows: Doris Hilton, Barbara Stevens, Ora Lamprey, Eleanor Stevens, Jeannette Lof, Phyllis Wolfenden, Denise Buteau, Shirley Denault, Irene Boulanger, Thelma Brackett, Helen Rosbury, Bernice Barnes, Floris Stone, and Edna Baker. Doris Hilton is the only second year member of this club.

Edna Baker and Helen Rosbury received Certificates of Honorable Mention in the Annual Contest.

All of the members have tried very hard to improve their writing, and have succeeded in becoming much better writers than they were.

Respectfully submitted,
Phyllis Wolfenden,
Secretary.

SEWING CLUB REPORT

This club was composed of the following members: Shirley Prunier, Shirley Rice, Joan Hammond, Vivian Poulin, Helen Carrington, Dorothy Stevens, Mary Sampson, and Barbara Moffatt.

The club officers were elected as usual and the result was Diana Zinkowsky, as President; Barbara Moffatt, Vice-President; and Mary Sampson, Secretary.

Most of the girls in the club made handbags for themselves or for friends. When the bags were finished, they started making other things.

They appreciated the cooperation and work of Mrs. Vizard, as supervisor.

Respectfully submitted,
Mary Sampson,
Secretary

GLEE CLUB REPORT

The Glee Club has been continued this year, under the careful supervision of Miss Putnam, with Evelyn Russell as pianist.

As in past years, members of the Glee Club participated in the Thanksgiving Day and Christmas Day assemblies. Other activities at which the Glee Club sponsored entertainment were: the Dramatic Club Play presentation, the Prize Speaking Contest, and Memorial Day Assembly. For the Glee Club concert held in May, the group rendered the following selections: "Morning," "Daybreak," "Jolly Tars," and "Alleluia;" while the Glee Club of Nichols Junior College of Dudley sponsored musical entertainment for the rest of the program. Graduation exercises provided another opportunity for the Glee Club, and the pieces given at that time were "Farewell," and "The Waltz of the Flowers."

Four members of this group - Jeannette Lof, Dorothy Mann, Margaret Farr, and Richard Smith - represented our high school in the New England Music Festival. Chorus held at Portland, Maine from April seventh to the tenth.

The club officers for the year have been: President, Shirley Rice; Vice-President, Burton Grant; and Secretary, Barbara Flaherty.

Respectfully submitted,
Barbara Flaherty,
Secretary

C.H.S. ORCHESTRA REPORT

Our orchestra this year consisted of eight members; namely, Agnes Prunier, violin; Beatrice Mann, guitar; Josephine Hiscox and Ora Lamprey, piano accordians; Margaret Farr, bells; Joan Lunn, piano; Denise Buteau, clarinet; and Richard Smith, alto sax.

We took part in many school activities; such as, the Junior and Senior Play Contest; the Thanksgiving Day Assembly; Christmas Assembly. We also played at the Glee Club Concert; the Charlton High School Class Day; and the Charlton Graduation exercises.

With the fine work of Miss Putnam and the members of the orchestra, we succeeded in having a very successful year.

Respectfully submitted,
Richard Smith,
Secretary

GIRLS' VOICE CLASS

The Freshmen, Sophomore, Junior, and Senior girls in Voice Class this year have had a very successful season as they have participated in the Thanksgiving and Christmas assemblies, Prize Speaking, Glee Club Concert, and Graduation Exercises.

They also sang at the Masonic Home when the Dramatic Club and Senior plays were presented.

At this time the girls wish to thank Miss Putnam for being so helpful and for giving so much of her time for their activities.

Respectfully submitted,
Margaret Farr,
Secretary

BOYS' VOICE CLASS

The Boys' Voice Class has had a very active year taking part in many different assemblies.

The members of the group are from various classes; therefore, there are three seniors, four juniors, four sophomores, and five freshmen.

One of the members of our group, Richard Smith, went to the Music Festival in South Portland, Maine.

We fellows hope that you, our classmates and friends, have enjoyed the music we have given you this year.

Respectfully submitted,
Burton Grant,

EXCHANGE REPORT

During this year, we have carried on exchanges with Sutton, Holden, Northboro, and many other schools.

We have received their school papers and found them very interesting. "The Suttonian," from Sutton High School, and "The Stylus", from Northboro contain many entertaining features which we believe could find a place in our Magazine. They feature a fashion section, and a hit parade section including their favorite songs.

We were also pleased to receive copies of "The National Echo." This paper, similar to a newspaper, is issued weekly and contains the best excerpts from school papers throughout the country.

If you are interested in seeing any of these school papers, we will gladly show them to you upon request.

Respectfully submitted,
Dorothy Mann,
Robert Lafler,

SPORTS

We did not have a very successful year in Basketball this year for we only won one game. All in all we had quite a good deal of enjoyment in playing the game and a few times we lost only by two points. The games we had scheduled and the scores are as follows:

Brookfield 18 ------------------------------------Charlton 16
West Boylston 13 ---------------------------------Charlton 22
North Brookfield 63 ------------------------------Charlton 51
Oxford 44 --Charlton 8
Rutland 58 ---------------------------------------Charlton 54

Repeat Games:

West Boylston 45 ---------------------------------Charlton 28
North Brookfield 58 ------------------------------Charlton 22
Oxford 48---Charlton 33
Brookfield 43 ------------------------------------Charlton 30
Rutland 23 ---------------------------------------Charlton 21

We have secured the A.O. field in Southbridge on which to practice baseball. Our schedule of games is as follows:

May 4 ----------------------------Charlton at Brookfield
May 7 ----------------------------Charlton at Rutland
May 11 ---------------------------West Bolyston at Charlton
May 14 ---------------------------Oxford at Charlton
May 18 ---------------------------North Brookfield at Charlton
May 21 ---------------------------Charlton at Oxford
